Price Protection Plans

No single plan is consistently the “best” choice year after year; it depends on the market. Often the most long term advantageous price comes from not locking in at all. To help you choose a plan that best suits your needs; we offer you the following choices.

| Value-Flex Plan               | • The price you pay is the current market price.
                                • Price varies up and down with market conditions.
                                • No enrollment in fuel agreement, liquidation fee or set number of gallons. | Value-Flex plan is good for people who prefer paying market price and flexibility. They understand the market prices may go up or may go down. |
| Tru-Cap Price                 | • You pay no more than the Cap price for the duration of your contract or until your gallons are used up, whichever comes first.
                                • If the daily price falls below your Cap price, you pay the lower price.
                                • There is a non-refundable $.10 per gallon protection fee associated with this plan. | Tru-Cap plans are good for people who are willing to pay a small “insurance” fee to get the benefit of paying a lower price should prices go below their agreed upon price. Good for budgeting. |
| Fixed Price                   | • The price per gallon is a guaranteed locked price.
                                • Your price remains the same regard less if the market goes up or down.
                                • You pay the same price per gallon for the duration of your contract or until your gallons are used up. | Fixed price plans are good for people who want the security of knowing their price is fixed and will not go higher, but are willing to take a chance that prices could go lower. Good for budgeting. |
